

17 November 2020

Solicitor-General Una Jagose QC wins Public Policy category at the Women of Influence 2020 Awards

Last night, Solicitor-General Una Jagose QC was announced winner in the Public Policy category at the Women of Influence 2020 Awards.

The Women of Influence programme helps share the remarkable stories of wāhine who are making a difference to the lives of New Zealanders.

Una's award celebrates her mahi throughout her public service career and recognises achievements including being the first woman to be appointed Solicitor-General of New Zealand, where she champions cultural reform of the legal profession and its values.

She says, "I was humbled to be given the award. I'm really proud of being a public servant and this award recognises the collaborative effort we all put in to make a difference for Aotearoa. Ehara taku toa, he takitahi, he toa takitini – success is not the work of one but the work of many".

ENDS

Read about the Women of Influence Awards.