Crown Law Office

Strategic Intent

Introduction

The Crown Law Office is pleased to present its first Statement of Intent for the year ending 30 June 2004.

The Statement of Intent comprises three sections: an overview of the role and functions of the Office, and a description of the outcomes to be achieved along with associated capability issues and risk analysis; the Statement of Responsibility and Forecast Financial Statements required in accordance with section 34A of the Public Finance Act 1989; and background information about the Office, its structure and services.

The Statement of Intent replaces the Departmental Forecast Report previously produced by the Office.

The Role of the Crown Law Office

The Crown Law Office provides legal advice and representation services to the Government in matters affecting the executive government, particularly in the areas of criminal, public and administrative law. The services provided relate to such matters as judicial review of government actions, constitutional questions including Treaty of Waitangi issues, the enforcement of criminal law, human rights challenges to government policies and procedures, and protection of the revenue.

The Office has two primary aims in providing these services:

- to ensure that the operations and responsibilities of the executive government are conducted lawfully, and
- to ensure that the government is not prevented, through legal process, from lawfully implementing its chosen policies and discharging its governmental responsibilities.

The Office also administers the prosecution process in the criminal justice system, in particular, trials on indictment before juries.

The Specific Responsibilities of the Crown Law Office

The Crown Law Office is responsible for supporting the two Law Officers of the Crown: the Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General. This support is provided through:

- the provision of legal advice and legal representation services to Ministers of the Crown, government departments, and agencies forming part of the government;
- assisting the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General in the performance of their statutory and other functions as Law Officers of the Crown;
- assisting the Solicitor-General with the conduct of criminal appeals;

Crown Law Office

- assisting the Solicitor-General in the supervision, direction and performance of regional Crown Solicitors in their prosecution functions, including administration of the Crown Solicitor's Regulations 1994; and
- providing advice on the establishment and development of legal service provision within government departments and agencies.

Protocols, in the form of the Cabinet Directions on the Conduct of Crown Legal Business 1993, have been developed to guide Government, departments and ministries in the use of the Office's legal services. The Cabinet Directions provide for two categories of legal work: Category 1 and Category 2 work. Category 1 work, which must be referred to the Solicitor-General on behalf of the Office, includes cases concerning actual or imminent litigation where the Government or agency is a party, situations involving the lawfulness of the exercise of Government powers, constitutional questions (including Treaty of Waitangi issues), and issues relating to the enforcement of the criminal law and the protection of the revenue. Category 2 work is essentially all other work, eg employment work, and is 'contestable' in the sense that departments may choose other legal advisors to assist them resolve matters.

The Office has no specific responsibility for policy formation or for the development of legislation. However when requested, the Office provides input to Government and departments on policy issues, operational changes or developments and proposed changes to legislation, particularly in respect of Criminal and Human Rights related issues.

The Justice Sector, The Public Sector and the Crown Law Office

The Crown Law Office is, by nature of its work, part of the Justice Sector grouping of government departments and agencies. Other departments and agencies in the Justice Sector include Ministry of Justice, New Zealand Police, Departments for Courts, Department of Corrections, Serious Fraud Office and the Department for Child Youth and Family.

The Office's role within the justice sector, and the wider public sector, revolves around two core areas of activity: providing legal advice and representation in court to Government, departments, and ministries in core areas of government activity; and the criminal justice system.

Legal Advice and Representation to Government, Departments and Ministries

The Government, departments and ministries require continuous access to legal advice as part of their ongoing policy development and operational roles and responsibilities. The legal advice services provided by the Crown Law Office comprise two parts:

- Legal advice and representation services (delivered to client departments and agencies on a fee for service basis);
- Legal advisory services (delivered to the Law Officers to support statutory and ministerial requirements, and funded by the Crown).

The Criminal Justice System

The Office also has responsibility for the supervision of the Crown prosecution service, for indictable crime, throughout New Zealand. A network of Crown Solicitors, who are appointed under warrant of the Governor-General, undertake the prosecution and appeal work for the various prosecution agencies, eg Police, Serious Fraud Office. The Office also conducts criminal appeals to the Court of Appeal and the Privy Council.

A description of each of these core areas of activity is set out below, with an analysis of the internal and external factors which are considered likely to have an impact on the Office's response to its role. This analysis includes a discussion of those legal issues seen as 'emerging' over the next 3 to 5 year timeframe.

Legal Advice and Representation Services

Legal services are generally obtained by Government and departments from three sources: in-house legal advisors, private sector legal advisors and the Crown Law Office. The Crown Law Office is normally instructed by in-house legal advisors on legal matters when further assistance or litigation experience is required. The Office will also sometimes engage external legal advisors to assist with its work. The engagement of external legal advisors, eg barristers, is often undertaken where particular specialist knowledge is required.

In practice, the Office operates much like a private sector legal practice and charges for its services. In doing so, the Office seeks to service client departments and agencies efficiently and effectively. The Cabinet Directions are seen largely as a guide to Government and departments in making decisions about the selection of appropriate advisors to address legal issues. That is, the Office seeks to attract clients by the quality of its services rather than by relying on the Directions. The success of this approach has been confirmed by the relatively high level of satisfaction reported, as part of the Office's performance measures, by clients in recent years. Key to this approach is the quality of the working relationship established with the client department's internal legal advisors and the strength of the organisational links with the policy and operational functions of each department and agency.

Much of the work received by the Office in this area is, by nature, reactive, and it has been growing in volume and complexity in recent years. This has tended to mirror changes that have occurred in the wider public sector and, in particular, in response to significant events such as the introduction of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act in 1990, the introduction of MMP in 1996, and the recent amendments to Human Rights legislation in 2002. The legislative changes referred to have raised the expectations of individuals and groups in the community about their personal, social and economic rights and created additional mechanisms for challenge to Governmental actions. MMP has introduced a more 'contestable' approach to the business of Government, the development of policy and the process of legislative change. Some of the specific legal issues that are now emerging include:

- Human Rights Legislation: With the coming into force of the Human Rights Amendment Act 2001, much governmental activity is now subject to human rights standards. Government faces a significant challenge in developing its policy making and other process to ensure it meets its obligations in this area and to justify its decisions. Coupled with this is the increasingly sophisticated use of the New Zealand Bill of Rights legislation to challenge established processes, particularly in the criminal justice sector.
- Treaty Claims and Negotiations: There are indications that the current emphasis on the hearing of historical claims in the Waitangi Tribunal and the subsequent negotiation process may shift to a process that focuses more on negotiated settlements. In addition, the number of contemporary claims has been increasing and these will need to be addressed in a consistent and co-ordinated way.

Crown Law Office

- Treaty Relationships: Coupled with the growth of contemporary claims there has been a greater willingness by Government agencies to enter into relational arrangements with Maori groups. This needs to be monitored and undertaken in a co-ordinated way to ensure that unintended legal risks are not created.
- International Law: The impact of international law on domestic law making and interpretation is likely to increase as a result of New Zealand's greater involvement in the 'global economy' and international treaty and trade arrangements.
- Occupational Safety and Health: Recent amendments to this legislation will see an increasing focus on stress as a workplace hazard requiring public sector employers to implement new processes to manage this risk.
- Historic Claims against Social Workers: An increased understanding of individual rights is leading to an increase in the number of cases being taken to review past actions by agencies in the social welfare and health services sectors.

These 'emerging' legal issues that the Office has identified as being of potential litigation concern will require a considered and co-ordinated approach by Government and departments to ensure that the legal risks are managed appropriately.

The Office's capacity to address this type of work has grown significantly in the last ten years through planned growth in internal resources and through an ability to use effectively a combination of internal and external legal advisors. At times, because of the sometimes urgent and complex nature of the legal work, the Office has been under pressure to meet the demands placed upon it. Establishing the right numbers and mix of staff to meet those demands remains a constant challenge for the Office, much like that facing any professional services organisation. The issue of staffing capability is covered under the heading of "capability" below.

Legal Advisory Services to the Law Officers

The services provided by the Office to the Solicitor-General and the Attorney-General as Law Officers of the Crown are, in part, similar to the ministerial support functions provided by all departments and ministries in support of Ministers. The majority of that support, however, has been to address the specific functions for which the Law Officers are responsible, ie monitoring the enforcement and application of the law, particularly the criminal law, supervision of charities, representation of the public interest, vexatious litigant proceedings and the exercise of a variety of powers, duties and authorities arising from statutory requirements and constitutional conventions. The Office will continue to undertake this legal advisory support role, and performance will be measured by way of client satisfaction responses, as is done currently. In addition, there are some issues emerging concerning the identification and management of the Crown's legal risk on which the Office expects to provide support to the Attorney-General:

- Cost of Legal Services to Government: There is an increased concern about the cost of legal services provided to Government, its departments and agencies, by internal and external advisors, including the Crown Law Office. The Attorney-General has publicly signalled a concern about this cost and is seeking to understand the cause and to consider options for managing the cost.

Crown Law Office

- Policy Input: Legal input into the policy development process of Government is an important risk management step necessary to ensure that human rights norms are complied with and the implications of policy choices are properly understood. This is becoming important in the public sector given the gaps between the increasing public demands and expectations and the availability of resources. The Office already provides input, when requested, to proposed legislation, eg in relation to compliance with Bill of Rights provisions and amendments, and developments in the criminal law jurisdiction. This input is frequently sought in these areas as the Office has acquired considerable experience in addressing these issues in an operational context, either through the provision of legal advice or by representing the Crown in court. However, there is a need to develop a system for ensuring that all policy developments are being monitored and assessed for their legal impact, and that any potential legal risk is being appropriately managed.
- Whole of Government Legal Risk Assessment: Government has adopted a ‘whole of government’ approach to its business, which emphasises departmental and sectoral co-ordination. This co-ordinated approach cuts across individual departmental and ministerial responsibilities, including that of managing legal risk. Identifying and putting in place a structure to manage the Government’s legal issues and risks as a whole, will become a priority in the next 3 to 5 years. The Office intends, in 2003/04, to consider this priority in conjunction with the Attorney-General and to scope how this issue might be addressed in a more strategic way. Such a strategic approach would be designed to minimise the potential risk of litigation, and to assist client departments to be aware of, and adopt where necessary, a similar approach.

The Criminal Justice System: Crown prosecutions and appeals

The supervision and conduct of Crown prosecutions and appeals is performed by a combination of resources available from within the Office and through the collective resources of the network of Crown Solicitors. The resources required for this activity are funded by the Crown.

The network of Crown Solicitors, who are partners in law firms in private practice, operates in centres where District Court and High Court jury trials are conducted throughout New Zealand. Crown Solicitors undertake criminal trials on indictment, and appeals from the summary jurisdiction. They are reimbursed for their services in accordance with the fees structure established by Crown Solicitors Regulations 1994. The day to day management of case work undertaken on behalf of prosecution agencies is the responsibility of Crown Solicitors, who are also responsible for staffing and resourcing their practices accordingly. The Office monitors the application of the Regulations in terms of payments, and approves applications for the classification of counsel and any requests for additional resources needed on difficult cases. The Office provides a co-ordination role within the network to guide and share prosecution practice and knowledge among the Crown Solicitor practices.

Appeals, which arise out of criminal trials on indictment and from Crown appeals in summary matters, are normally conducted by the Office. The demand for these services and the impact on current staffing levels are still being assessed following recent changes to the Court of Appeal’s hearing procedures. The changes have increased the preparation work necessary in most cases and this has impacted on available resources. The Office can, and does, use the network of Crown Solicitors to assist in managing this demand where necessary.

The demand for prosecution and appeal services depends on many factors, which are predominantly outside the Office’s direct control. The rate of crime, and more importantly the number of indictments laid, drive the volume of cases. The time taken to bring a case to trial will depend upon a variety of factors such as the prosecution agency's workload, the complexity of the case in terms of preparatory steps such as the briefing of witnesses, defence tactics and the availability of court time for interlocutory arguments and for trial. It is difficult to accurately forecast the volume of cases in this area and, in particular, how long individual trials might take. This uncertainty has an impact upon budgeting for expenditure and the funding necessary from the Crown. Work is being undertaken to try and achieve a better understanding of the impacts on the cost of prosecution expenditure so that forecasts of long term funding can be improved. Part of this work will involve other agencies in the sector, eg Police, Courts, where opportunities to co-ordinate the production of statistics or other knowledge may assist the Justice sector in responding to its crime reduction and safer communities objectives.

Crown Law Office Response to Emerging Legal Issues

The scan of current and 'emerging' legal issues has identified a number of actions that the Office will need to address. These include:

Legal Advice and Representation Services

The anticipated growth in rights' based issues will require additional resources and expertise to provide the necessary advice and representation services and to develop a proactive strategic approach. The extent of additional resource required will be assessed during 2003/04. This situation also applies to the increase in contemporary claims under the Treaty of Waitangi. Other issues are expected to be addressed by existing resources through some re-arrangement of priorities.

Legal Advisory Services to the Law Officers

The allocation of resources to assist with the co-ordination of input into policy developments is likely to be addressed early in 2003/04 as the need is seen as reasonably urgent. This is expected to be addressed through reallocation of existing resources, although it may require separate funding if it is retained as a long term option. The scoping of resources needed to address the 'whole of government' legal risk assessment will be addressed within existing resources.

Outcome Framework

Key Government Goals

Key Government goals have been developed to guide the work of the public sector in achieving sustainable development. These goals are intended to provide a framework and context for public sector organisations to develop and implement strategies, and to support operational decision-making. The Office's work, in common with other Justice Sector organisations, is focused towards the goal to "maintain trust in Government and provide strong social services".

Justice Sector Outcomes

The Government's goals have been incorporated into specific outcomes developed by organisations belonging to the Justice Sector, of which the Crown Law Office is part. The outcomes, which have been described as 'end' outcomes and have an estimated 10 to 15 year timeframe for delivery aim to achieve:

Crown Law Office

- Safer communities (being communities in which there is reduced crime and in which safety and well-being is enhanced through partnerships)
- A fairer, more credible and more effective justice system (being a system in which people's interactions are underpinned by the rule of law and justice services are more equitable, credible and accessible)

Further work is required by the sector to break down these end outcomes into 'intermediate' outcomes, with an estimated 3 to 5 year timeframe, to provide improved sector-wide guidance to agencies charged with the responsibility for the development of their 'intermediate' outcomes. The production of 'intermediate' outcomes by agencies is a new and important step in the process of demonstrating an improved accountability for the production and delivery of goods and services within the public sector.

Contribution by the Crown Law Office to these Outcomes

The Office, along with other agencies within the Justice Sector, has been considering its role and responsibilities in the context of the above end outcomes. The development of appropriate intermediate outcomes for the Office, which demonstrate a logical link to the wider Justice Sector outcomes, has proved challenging. The nature of the services provided by the Office to departments and Government do not easily lend themselves to being expressed in terms of outcomes by the Office, given that they largely serve as input to other Government policy and operational organisation outputs and, ultimately, their outcomes. In a practical sense, the Office's services might be better described as 'intermediate' outputs, ie the legal services provided to government departments and agencies in order for them to meet their organisational objectives.

However, despite the above difficulties, the Office has determined that the following four areas will comprise, as a starting point, its contribution to the Justice Sector outcomes:

- protecting the Crown's legal interests,
- supporting the responsibilities of the Crown and its agencies,
- the maintenance of law and order, and
- the maintenance of public interest factors in the application of the law.

Further work will be required, commencing in 2003/04, to develop these contributions into intermediate outcomes and to determine appropriate performance measures. It is anticipated that this work will be linked where possible to ongoing work in this area by other Justice Sector organisations.

Crown Law Office Outputs

The resources required for the above contributions are obtained through an appropriation for Vote Attorney-General, which provides for the purchase of the following services, or Outputs:

- Legal advice and representation services to central government departments and Crown agencies (Output Class: Legal Advice and Representation)

Crown Law Office

- A national Crown prosecution service which undertakes criminal trials on indictment, and appeals arising out of summary prosecutions (Output Class: Supervision and Conduct of Crown Prosecutions)
- Conduct of appeals arising from criminal trials on indictment and from Crown appeals against sentence (Output Class: Conduct of Criminal Appeals)
- Legal and administrative services for the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General in the exercise of Principal Law Officer functions (Output Class: The Exercise of Principal Law Officer Functions)

Each of the outputs purchased are described in more detail in the Statement of Objectives and Forecast Service Performance in the next section of this Statement of Intent. The following table provides the links that have been initially drawn between the services being delivered (outputs) and the contribution to the Justice Sector outcomes described above (the Office's 'intermediate' outcomes).

Output Class	'Intermediate' Outcomes
Legal Advice and Representation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • protecting the Crown's legal interests • supporting the responsibilities of the Crown and its agencies • the maintenance of public interest factors in the application of the law
Supervision and Conduct of Crown Prosecutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the maintenance of law and order
Conduct of Criminal Appeals	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the maintenance of law and order
The Exercise of Principal Law Officer Functions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • protecting the Crown's legal interests • the maintenance of law and order • the maintenance of public interest factors in the application of the law

Further work will be undertaken in 2003/04 to identify and describe the interventions that contribute to the outcomes and then incorporate these as appropriate in the next Statement of Intent.

Capability

Capability is the ability of the Office to deliver its strategy successfully through an appropriate combination of people, resources, systems and structures. These are commented upon in turn:

- People: The Office has acquired and developed staff who are specialised in areas of public and administrative law and who can demonstrate independence and critical judgement. Development of staff skills and expertise has been enhanced by a conscious decision taken in the early 1990's to grow the specialist expertise in Government related issues within the

Office and only to brief out work that required skills and experience not possessed by the Office. Legal and support staff have access to continuing education opportunities designed to maintain currency of skills and knowledge and to upskill where the need arises. The Office adopts a similar approach to that of private law firms in assessing the level of staffing needed for its work. Given the largely demand based nature of the work, staff capacity and time utilisation is carefully monitored and used as a basis for informing decisions on the recruitment of additional staff. Very little difficulty has been experienced in recruiting well qualified, skilled and experienced legal and support staff whether needed for growth or for replacement. This process of addressing people resource needs is not expected to change in the 3 to 5 year timeframe.

The environment scan undertaken, which is described above, discussed emerging legal issues that were likely to have an impact on the people resources needed within the Office in the immediate and medium term. In the short term the Office will identify its need for assistance with policy input, which is currently estimated to require, at least an additional counsel. Other staffing needs for legal advice and Crown prosecution work are, as advised above, under continuous review. Any funding for additional staff, which cannot be achieved within current appropriation levels of expenditure, will be planned for and included in the next available budget cycle.

The Office has human resource management policies, procedures and systems in place, which recognise "good employer" responsibilities. These have been designed to ensure that staff are able to work in a safe and healthy office environment, participate fully in achieving the goals of the Office, and are presented with opportunities to develop personally and professionally. Strategies are being developed and updated continuously, in the context of a busy litigation practice, to address leadership, organisational culture, and work and family issues. A number of these issues were identified as concerns by staff in the recent survey on career progression and development, which was conducted by the State Services Commission.

- Resources: Key resources for the Office include the legal research and library facilities, litigation support processes and the professional standards that have been developed to guide the delivery and quality of services. The research and library function face a challenge to provide counsel with access to a wide range of paper and electronic based resources upon which to base opinions and other advice and representation work. The Office continually works with other agencies within the Justice Sector to share and co-ordinate access to research materials and to negotiate with suppliers over the purchase of necessary material. A large number of contacts overseas are used to access information on international law jurisdictions of relevance in the New Zealand context.

The Office's primary role as a litigation practice requires the existence of litigation support systems and processes that are able to respond to the often urgent demand to identify and manage the volumes of documents embodied in cases. The efficient and effective management and processing of documents and the determination of strategies for cases are assisted by computer systems technology, and experienced support staff. The Office is continuing to develop its professional standards for the conduct of litigation. The standards are designed to encompass the wide range of litigation for which the Office is responsible, including judicial review, claims for damages, and actions alleging breach of rights. It has been important to establish a framework for litigation so that all practice groups and teams across the Office have a common understanding of the issues and desired approach.

Crown Law Office

- Systems: The legal advice and representation functions of the Office make heavy use of information technology and systems for the production and management of documents, the conduct of legal research, communication with clients, and the management of matters on behalf of those clients. Emphasis to date has been placed on creating a stable and reliable technology platform that recognises the growth in the size of the Office and which can progressively absorb any further changes. Recent developments in document management system technology are being evaluated for use in developing the Office's knowledge base of opinions and client documents as well as meeting stated client needs for accessing those documents. The latter need is seen as an important goal in keeping clients informed on progress with their work. Progress towards this goal is expected to be achieved within 2003/04, commencing with secure access to specific documents by clients. Improving the level of information and reducing the number of documents that are communicated between the Office and clients as part of work in progress will reduce the risks associated with, for example, the existence of multiple copies of the same document.
- Structures: In 2001, the Office revisited its organisation structure, which had been largely unchanged since it was developed in the early 1990's. Since that time the Office has doubled in size in response to the growing demand for legal advice and representation and the decision to grow the capability of the Office to service a wider range of legal work in the core public sector. To ensure that the services provided remain co-ordinated and consistent, changes were made to provide the Solicitor-General with further direct assistance to manage the Office. An additional Deputy Solicitor-General was appointed in 2002 and the Office's existing legal teams were divided into three practice groups each headed by a Deputy Solicitor-General. The three groups, ie Constitutional Law Group, Criminal Process Group and Public Law Group approximate the areas of work described under the discussion on outcomes above. The Deputy Solicitors-General, in conjunction with the Team Leaders in their Groups, have responsibility for co-ordinating the performance of the legal teams, providing professional leadership and professional management, and facilitating the professional development of staff within their groups.

The new structure, which is summarised in the section on Organisation Information included in this Statement of Intent, is expected to serve the Office and benefit clients through a revised focus on working relationships with clients, for at least the next 3 to 5 years.

Risk

Risk is seen to exist at two levels:

- Internal risks: These are risks, which might arise from an inability to be able to respond to urgent needs for legal advice and support to Government and departments, either by way of resources or in terms of specialist knowledge. Options exist to brief out work when this type of situation occurs. The use of additional resources to balance demand with the resources needed may have an unplanned impact on costs for the Office and the client.

In addition, risk might arise where the Crown Solicitor network, as a whole, is unable to respond to the demands placed on it for the prosecution of crime. In practice, the network has normally managed unusual demands by sharing their resources as necessary.

- External risks: These are risks that might arise where Government is not able to achieve a public sector wide understanding, co-ordination and management of legal risks arising out of policy and operational activities.

Crown Law Office

In response to such risk analysis, strategies are in place (internal risk), or will be developed (external risks) as considered necessary.

Development of the Statement of Intent

The Office has endeavoured in its first Statement of Intent to provide a description of its role, the 'emerging' legal issues it anticipates will impact upon current resources, how it intends to address these issues, and how it interacts with the wider Justice and Public sectors in terms of outcomes. Given the Office's unique role in the public sector, it is considered that it will take more time to understand and to document its outcomes and more particularly develop performance measures to demonstrate progress. Work on this aspect is expected to continue through 2003/04 and be included as appropriate in the next Statement of Intent.

Forecast Financial Statements & Statement of Responsibility

Financial Overview and Highlights

Forecast expenditure for Vote Attorney-General in 2003/04 totals $38.793 million. It is intended to spend this amount as follows:

- $13.411 million (34.6% of the total) on providing legal advice and representation services to central government departments.
- $22.861 million (58.9% of the total) on providing a national Crown prosecution service, which undertakes criminal trials on indictment and related appeals.
- $1.284 million (3.3% of the total) on the conduct of appeals arising from criminal trials on indictment and from Crown appeals against sentence.
- $1.237 million (3.2% of the total) on providing legal and administrative services to the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General to assist them in the exercise of their statutory functions and responsibilities.

The Crown Law Office expects to receive $14.235 million from government departments and other organisations for providing legal advice and representation. The provision of that legal advice and representation is the way in which the Crown Law Office contributes to the key government goals guiding public sector policy and performance.

The forecast financial highlights are:

	2002/03		2003/04

Statement of Responsibility

The forecast financial statements for the Crown Law Office for the year ending 30 June 2004 contained in this report have been prepared in accordance with section 34A of the Public Finance Act 1989.

The Chief Executive of the Crown Law Office acknowledges, in signing this statement, that he is responsible for the forecast financial statements contained in this report.

The financial performance forecast to be achieved by the department for the year ending 30 June 2004, that is specified in the statement of objectives, is as agreed with the Attorney-General who is the Minister responsible for the financial performance of the Crown Law Office.

The performance for each class of outputs forecast to be achieved by the department for the year ending 30 June 2004, that is specified in the statement of objectives, is as agreed with the Attorney-General who is responsible for the Vote administered by the department.

We certify that this information is consistent with the appropriations contained in the Estimates for the year ending 30 June 2004 that are being laid before the House of Representatives under section 9 of the Public Finance Act 1989.

Crown Law Office

Notes to the Forecast Financial Statements for the year ending 30 June 2004

1. Statement of Significant Assumptions

These statements have been compiled on the basis of Government policies and the Crown Law Office's output agreement with the Attorney-General. The statements are also in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and the Public Finance Act 1989.

2. Statement of Accounting Policies

Reporting Entity

The Crown Law Office is a government department as defined by section 2 of the Public Finance Act 1989. These are forecast financial statements of the Crown Law Office prepared pursuant to section 34A of the Public Finance Act 1989.

Measurement System

The financial statements have been prepared on an historical cost basis, modified by the revaluation of the Library asset.

Accounting Policies

Revenue

The Office derives revenue through the provision of outputs to the Crown and for services to third parties. Such revenue is recognised when earned and is reported in the financial period to which it relates.

Cost Allocation

The Office has determined the cost of outputs using a cost allocation system, which is outlined below.

Cost Allocation Policy

Direct costs are charged directly to significant activities. Indirect costs are charged to significant activities based on cost drivers and related activity/usage information.

Direct and Indirect Cost Assignment to Outputs

Direct costs are charged directly to outputs. Personnel costs are charged to outputs on the basis of actual time incurred.

Indirect costs are the costs of corporate management and support services, including depreciation and capital charge, and are assigned to outputs based on the proportion of direct staff costs for each output.

Crown Law Office

Notes to the Forecast Financial Statements - continued for the year ending 30 June 2004

2. Statement of Accounting Policies - continued

Work-in-Progress

Work-in-progress is determined as unbilled time plus disbursements that can be recovered from clients, and has been valued at the lower of cost or expected realisable value.

Debtors and Receivables

Receivables are recorded as estimated realisable value, after providing for doubtful and uncollectable debts.

Operating Leases

Operating lease payments, where the lessor effectively retain substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the leased item, are charged as expenses in the periods in which they are incurred.

Fixed Assets

A revaluation of the library asset is carried out at least every three years. New publications purchased for the library are capitalised between the revaluations.

All other fixed assets, costing more than $1000, are capitalised and recorded at historical cost less accumulated depreciation.

Depreciation

Depreciation of fixed assets is provided on a straight line basis at rates that will write off the cost of the assets, less their estimated residual values, over their estimated useful lives. The useful lives of the major classes of assets have been estimated as follows:

• Computer equipment	3 years	(33.3%)
• Office equipment	5 years	(20%)
• Furniture and fittings	5 years	(20%)
• Leasehold improvements	Up to 3 years	(33.3%)
• Library	10 years	(10%)

The cost of leasehold improvements is capitalised and amortised over the un-expired period of the lease or the estimated remaining useful lives of the improvements, whichever is shorter.

Employee Entitlements

The liability for entitlements by staff to annual leave, long service leave and retirement leave have been provided for as follows:

- Existing entitlements to annual leave and long service leave have been calculated on an actual entitlement basis at current rates of pay.

Crown Law Office

Notes to the Forecast Financial Statements - continued for the year ending 30 June 2004

2. Statement of Accounting Policies – continued

- Future entitlements to long service leave and retirement leave have been calculated on an actuarial basis based on the present value of expected future entitlements.

Foreign Currency

Foreign currency transactions are converted at the New Zealand dollar exchange rate at the date of the transaction. No forward exchange contracts are entered into.

Financial Instruments

The Office is party to financial transactions as part of its normal operations. These financial instruments, which include bank accounts, short term deposits, debtors and creditors, are recognised in the Statement of Forecast Financial Position and all revenue and expenses in relation to financial instruments are recognised in the Statement of Forecast Financial Performance. Except for those items covered by a separate accounting policy, all financial instruments are shown at their estimated fair value.

Goods and Services Tax (GST)

All amounts in the Forecast Financial Statements have been stated on a GST exclusive basis. The Statement of Forecast Financial Position is also exclusive of GST, except for Debtors and Receivables and Creditors and Payables, which are GST inclusive. The amount of GST owing to the Inland Revenue Department at balance date, being the difference between Output GST and Input GST, is included in Creditors and Payables.

Taxation

Government departments are exempt from the payment of income tax in terms of the Income Tax Act 1994. Accordingly, no charge for income tax has been provided for.

Commitments

Future expenses and liabilities to be incurred on contracts that have been entered into at balance date are disclosed as commitments to the extent that there are equally unperformed obligations.

Contingent Liabilities

Contingent liabilities are disclosed at the point at which the contingency is evident.

Taxpayers' Funds

This is the Crown's net investment in the Office.

Changes in Accounting Policies

No changes in accounting policies are proposed.

Crown Law Office

Output Class D2 - Supervision and Conduct of Crown Prosecutions

Description: This output class involves the provision of a national Crown prosecution service which undertakes criminal trials on indictment and related appeals, the supervision of the network of Crown Solicitors, who deliver the prosecution service in centres where District Court and High Court jury trials are conducted throughout New Zealand, and the provision of advice on criminal law matters to other government agencies and Crown Solicitors.

The advice on criminal law matters includes undertaking work in the following areas: proceeds of crime, mutual assistance, blood sampling for DNA, request for Crown appeals arising out of summary prosecutions, consent to prosecute, applications for stays and immunity from prosecution.

This output class comprises three outputs:

- Crown Prosecution Services
- Supervision of Crown Solicitor Network
- Criminal Law Advice and Services

Output D2.1: Crown Prosecution Services

Description: The national Crown prosecution service involves undertaking all the criminal trials on indictment, including appeals against conviction and sentence arising from summary prosecutions, for all regions in New Zealand. The services are delivered by a network of sixteen Crown Solicitors, who operate as law practitioners in private practice, in centres where District Court and High Court criminal jury trials take place.

The provision of prosecution services by Crown Solicitors will be reviewed according to a range of quality standards which include:

- compliance with professional standards of conduct.
- application of the Solicitor-General's prosecution guidelines.
- compliance with court procedures and the requirements of the judiciary and clients in the management of cases.
- compliance with the Crown Solicitors Regulations 1994 and, in particular, the charging for services rendered.
- compliance with the protocols and financial guidelines developed by the Office to support the application of the above Regulations.

A review of the performance of Crown Solicitors, in providing prosecution services, will be undertaken on a cyclical basis by a Review Panel, which comprises senior representatives from Crown Law Office and an independent adviser. The panel will address two main areas:

- case processing efficiency and effectiveness using a questionnaire and interview approach with the judiciary, clients and profession
- practice management case allocation, "good employer" responsibilities, financial reporting on cases, and compliance with the Regulations and the supporting protocols.

A report is to be prepared for the Solicitor-General by each Review Panel containing documentary evidence of the review process including the use of checklists and questionnaires with assessments and conclusions.

Crown Law Office

Organisation Information

Governance Structure

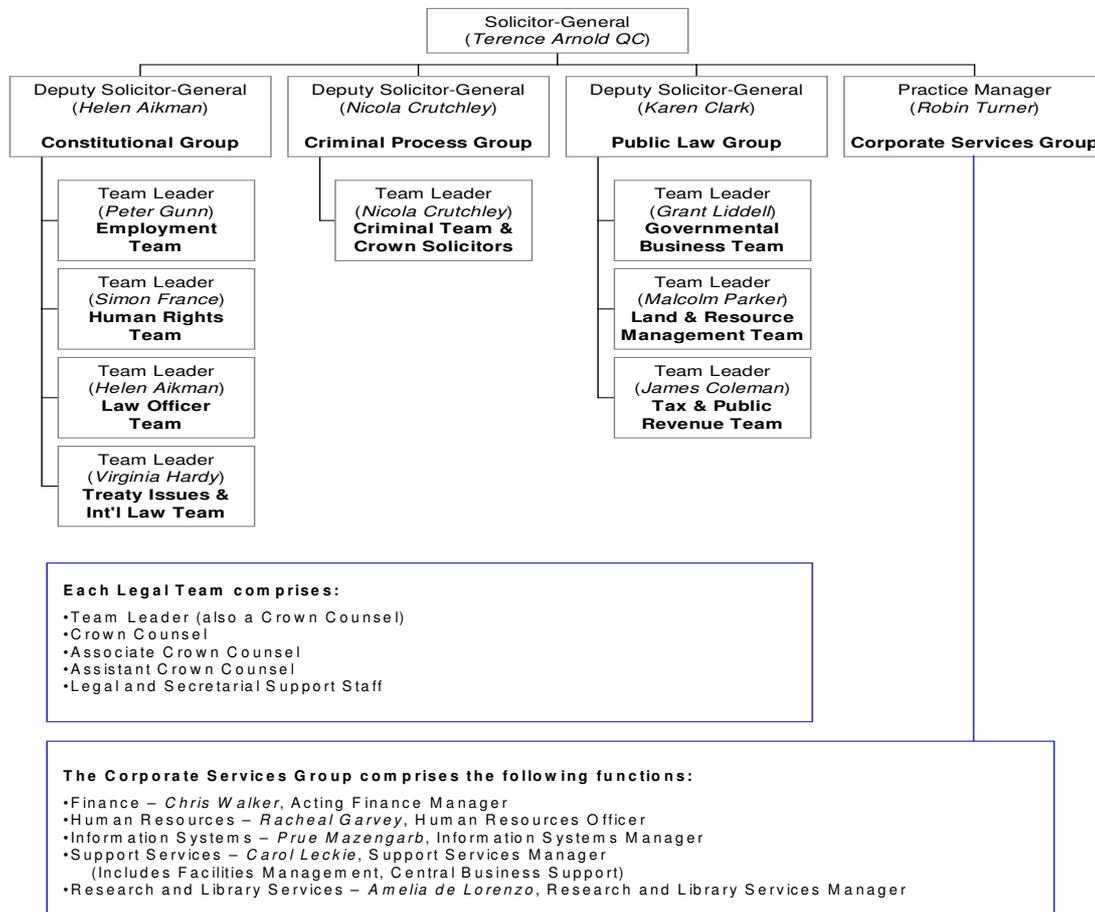

The Crown Law Office is a government department whose primary function is to support the two Law Officers of the Crown: the Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General, in the performance of their statutory duties and functions.

The Attorney-General, who concurrently holds offices as a Minister of the Crown with political responsibilities and as the senior Law Officer of the Crown, has principal responsibility for the government's administration of the law.

The Solicitor-General is the chief legal advisor to the government, subject to any views expressed by the Attorney-General. In this capacity, the Solicitor-General is the Government's chief advocate in the courts. In addition, the Solicitor-General is responsible for the conduct of the prosecution of indictable crime, and also has a number of specific statutory duties and functions to perform. The Solicitor-General is also the Chief Executive of the Crown Law Office.

Organisation Structure

The Crown Law Office is organised into eight client servicing legal teams and a corporate services group as shown by the following chart:

Crown Law Office

Legislative Responsibilities

The Crown Law Office administers the Crown Solicitors Regulations 1994 which set out the basis upon which the scale of fees is calculated and the process by which fees are claimed and paid to Crown Solicitors for undertaking Crown prosecution work.

The Cabinet Directions for the Conduct of Crown Legal Business 1993, govern the conduct of legal business between the Law Officers of the Crown, the Crown Law Office and government departments and agencies.

Crown Solicitor Network

A network of Crown Solicitors, who are legal practitioners in private practice, conduct indictable trials on behalf of the Crown in all High Court districts around New Zealand. Crown Solicitors are appointed on the recommendation of the Attorney-General, and by warrant of the Governor-General. The Solicitor-General is responsible for supervising the Crown Solicitors in respect of the conduct of prosecutions and other legal work undertaken for the government. The Crown Solicitors Regulations 1994 provide the basis for remuneration of Crown Solicitors.

There are sixteen private law practitioners holding warrants as Crown Solicitors. Together with their partners and staff solicitors from the practice and the local prosecution panels, the Crown Solicitors undertake prosecution work in those centres where District Court and High Court jury trials are conducted. The Crown Solicitor warrants covers the following regions:

- Whangarei
- Auckland
- Hamilton
- Tauranga
- Rotorua
- New Plymouth
- Gisborne
- Napier
- Palmerston North
- Wanganui
- Wellington
- Tasman
- Christchurch
- Timaru
- Dunedin
- Invercargill

Office Accommodation

The Office is located in St Paul's Square, Thorndon and occupies three floors plus a mezzanine floor of office accommodation. The premises are currently under lease until 31 December 2004. The Office has now outgrown the space available within the current leased premises to effectively accommodate the growth in staff numbers in recent years. A search for alternate accommodation was commenced in 2002 and planning for a shift to new premises in 2004 is now well advanced.
